

The map above shows potential new sites for a training facility to be built. The potential areas are then colored in based on how well they fit the criteria, red being the most suitable location and green being the least. The top map took all the criteria with the same weight whereas the bottom map devalued soil erosion susceptibility.